Auditions

- Audition to declare a Music major.
- Your major audition can double as your audition for music scholarships (separate from ensemble auditions).
- Complete your on-campus audition on a weekday to rehearse with an ensemble, have a lesson, sit in on a class, and tour campus. Select weekend dates are also available.
- Fill out the Audition Request Form online or contact the professor of your instrument/voice type directly at truman.edu/audition-process.

Student Organizations

- National Association for Music Education – Truman chapter
- Phi Mu Alpha – men's music fraternity
- Sigma Alpha Iota – women's music fraternity
- Pi Kappa Lambda – music honor society
- Truman Percussion Society
- The Mostly Live Composer's Society

Recent Awards/Accolades

- An original musical composition by Nicholas Maluf, a music composition major, was selected for performance on the 2014 Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia Composers Recital hosted by the University of Missouri-Columbia. Nicholas' composition, entitled "Showdown for saxophone quartet," was performed on the University of Missouri campus by their musicians. "Showdown" was one of six pieces selected from a statewide call for submissions from Missouri composers who are connected to a chapter of the music fraternity Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia.
- An original composition by Truman student composer, Andrew William Steinbeck, was selected for performance at the national Christian Fellowship of Art Music Composers, which took place at Houghton College in New York. Andrew's composition, entitled "Se Dice en el Campo," was performed by Truman students Benjamin Forrester (tenor), Andrew Steinbeck (bassoon) and Michael Marmorstein (piano). Selection of this piece for performance is significant, as the CFAMC selection committee reviewed music submitted primarily by established professional composers.

Faculty

- 21 full-time faculty members
- 79% of faculty hold a doctorate degree
- Teach all private lessons and advise students in their instrument

"In our choral ensembles, as with all the Music Department ensembles, we have a high standard of performance with intense but fun rehearsals. I love working with and teaching Truman students because they are so quick and responsive, which allows us to dig down into the music and discover what it is all about."

Mark Jennings
Associate Professor of Music / Director of Choral Activities

After the Degree

- 83% of music graduates in 2013 pursued graduate studies immediately after graduation.
- Pursue further study in performance, music education, musicology and more!
- Graduates have gone on to study at Bowling Green State University, Juilliard School of Music, University of Missouri-Kansas City, and Yale University.
- Alumni are now directors of bands at high schools throughout the region and also work in performing, arranging, and composing roles.

Be Inspired

Pursue your passion for music. Whether you're interested in instrumental or vocal music, you will find a home here. With 200 students in the major, you will be a part of a tight-knit learning and performing community. Fill your schedule with as many ensembles as you wish. Your faculty advisor is also your professor for private lessons, ensuring that you have a faculty mentor throughout your musical journey.

Join one or more of Truman's six music-oriented student organizations, or found a new student organization. Work one-on-one with a faculty member on original research, and then present your findings at a professional conference. Take advantage of additional research opportunities in the Electronic Music Working Group. Study abroad through an exchange program at a conservatory in Italy.

Audition. Choose your program. Prepare for a life inspired by music.
