DeLancey Named Truman's Educator of the Year

Julia DeLancey, associate professor of art, was announced as Educator of the Year at the 12th annual banquet held April 25. DeLancey began teaching at Truman in 1995. She received her bachelor's degree with honors from the University of Michigan and her doctorate from the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

She currently teaches courses in historical methods, Baroque art and art history senior thesis. In addition, she is the campus liaison for the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars. She is also the president of Truman's Phi Kappa Phi chapter.

Each finalist was asked to respond to the question, "What does excellence mean to you?"

"As members of a community of which we have each chosen to be a part of, we each have a responsibility to model, and thereby perpetuate excellence," DeLancey responded. "In the same way that knowledge cannot exist in a vacuum, neither can excellence. It must be supported, shaped and demonstrated to continue."

This year 31 faculty were nominated for the Educator of the Year award, the most nominations since 1990. The committee narrows the group down to 12 semi-finalists and then to six finalists. The honoree is eventually selected by a student committee after observing the faculty members in their classroom, getting input from the students in their classes and reviewing the written responses by the faculty members.

The Educator of the Year program is sponsored by Student Senate, Alpha Phi Sigma, Pershing Society, Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi.

Forensics Team Places Fifth in the Nation

The Truman State University Forensics team placed fifth in the National Forensic Association Tournament in President's Division I for the second consecutive year.

Several Truman students placed in elimination rounds. Brian Amsden, senior communication major from Fenton, Mo., was a quarterfinalist in Lincoln-Douglas debate. Amy Carmack, junior communication arts major from Sedalia, Mo., was a quarterfinalist in both after-dinner speaking and prose interpretation. Heather Carmack, junior communication arts major from Sedalia, Mo., with her partner Nathaniel Dendy, freshman theater major from Liberty, Mo., were quarterfinalists in duo interpretation. Dendy also was a quarterfinalist in prose interpretation and poetry interpretation. Kristopher Kueker, sophomore computer science major from Perryville, Mo., also reached the quarterfinals of after-dinner speaking.

The team's national ranking would not have been possible without outstanding preliminary round contributions from Julie Anderson, freshman biology and theater double major from DeKalb, Ill.; Jaci Devine, freshman communication major from Inverness, Ill.; Summer Kirchmann, freshman justice systems major from Springfield, Mo.; Shane Mullen, freshman from Maryville, Mo.; and Ben Williams, freshman from Blue Springs, Mo.

Truman Mathematics Team Places First Among 23 Teams in Missouri

At the recent seventh annual Missouri MAA Collegiate Mathematics Competition, Truman's Team A was the highest scoring team, placing first among a list of 23 teams from 13 universities in Missouri that included those from Washington University and the University of Missouri-Columbia. This is the first time a team from Truman has won the competition.

The competition was held in conjunction with the 2002 Missouri Section meeting of the Mathematical Association of America hosted by Truman State University in Kirksville, April 11-13.

Truman's Team B placed eighth and consisted of Carlos DiStefano of Kirksville, Laurnelle Schmitz of Kansas City, Mo., and Ajaya Panday of Kathmandu, Nepal. Both of Truman's teams were sponsored by Steve Smith, professor of mathematics.

Each team is given 10 problems to choose from. The team chooses one problem to work on together and they are then given five hours to come up with a solution.

Truman Students Win SPJ's Region 7 Mark-of-Excellence Awards

Students working for the Index and TruNews were named as winners in the Society of Professional Journalists Region 7 Mark of Excellence competition April 13. The Index won second as the Best All Around Non-Daily Student Newspaper.

Region 7 includes Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. The special awards ceremony was part of a joint Region 5 and 7 conference held at Lincoln Land Community College, Springfield, Ill. The conference drew more than 130 professional and student journalists from a seven-state area, including 10 from Truman State University's chapter.

For 28 years, the Society of Professional Journalists has presented the Mark of Excellence Awards honoring the best in student journalism. Judged at the regional and national level, the awards offer categories for print, online, radio and television collegiate journalism. First place winners will now compete at the national level.

National winners will be announced in the Quill, the official magazine of the Society of Professional Journalists and will be honored in the fall at the 2002 SPJ National Convention in Fort Worth, Texas.

Omicron Delta Kappa Presents Gift to Campaign

Omicron Delta Kappa Faculty Secretary David Hoffman, Vice-President Erin Lescynzski, and President Brandon Harris, recently presented a check to University President Jack Magruder on behalf of Omicron Delta Kappa to support the Magruder Hall Campaign.

The Truman chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa will be recognized with an engraved brick in the new plaza just north of the building. Their donation was a result of their organization's name being drawn out from all of those organizations who participated in a Strategic Planning Advisory Committee focus group.

Truman Today is a weekly publication of Truman State University for faculty, staff and students. Deadline for entries is 5 p.m., the Wednesday preceding Tuesday's publication. Entries should be submitted by sending an e-mail to ksvoboda@truman.edu or by completing a Truman Today form available in the Public Relations Office, McClain Hall 102.
